THE ISLE OF PINES NOT UNSCATHED

Destruction On The Florida Mainland Not So Extensive As Was Feared--Railroad Building Along Chain Of Keys To Cuba But Slightly Damaged.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Oct. 23.—A solitary survivor of the thirty-three men who went adrift on the barge or houseboat "Hasty" from lower Matamoras, Key on the coast of Florida, during the terrific gale Oct. 18, was brought into port today by the steamer "El Paso." He is John Russell of Salem, Fla.

Isle of Pines Suffered
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Havana, Oct. 23.—Contrary to the statements received by the government it now appears that the Isle of Pines suffered considerable damage from the cyclone. Many houses were blown down and much damage was done to the fruit crops.

Florida Mainland's Escape
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Oct. 23.—Reassuring reports as to the damage done to the Florida properties of scores of Chicago, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan people, properties worth millions of dollars, by the Cuban hurricane last week were received today at the Chicago office of the Florida East Coast railway. The reports state that little damage was done because the storm, like others which have visited the Gulf region, followed the Gulf stream and veered off from the mainland to the open sea. Such storms usually are in September—rarely later than October.

Many Chicago people and others in adjacent states have established winter homes on Florida's east coast, but their buildings are generally of too substantial character to have suffered by the mere wind and rain out

MANY OPPOSE USE OF ENGLISH KHAKI

General Wood's Suggestion, Backed by Quartermaster's Department—American Goods Favored.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—The quartermaster's department of the army is disposed to take issue with Major General Leonard Wood, commanding the Philippine division, as to the economy of using English khaki made up in the Philippines for soldiers' uniforms instead of the regular army clothing manufactured in this country of American khaki. The officers of that department insist that American khaki is superior to the English article. These officers also say that to insure a regular supply of uniforms it would be necessary to establish a clothing factory in Manila which would involve a large expenditure of money. They do not believe there would be a saving in cost if the uniforms were made in the Philippines.

ANOTHER DAY WITH CARRIAGE MAKERS

Va., president of the S. E. D. National Wagon Makers' association.

UNITED STATES IS NOT REPRESENTED

Government Has No Delegate to Congress for Suppression of "White Slave" Traffic.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Paris, Oct. 23.—The third international congress for the suppression of traffic in women began its business sessions today, with former Premier Bourgeois presiding. Considerable regret is expressed that the United States is not officially represented at the congress, as it is recognized that the co-operation of all the civilized world is necessary if the measures for the suppression of the "white slave" traffic are to be made effective.

At Eleventh Hour.

NEGRO BAPTISTS IN NATIONAL SESSION

Representatives of Every Section of Country at Washington—Other Religious Conventions.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—Representative colored men and women from every section of the country were present today at the opening of the annual convention of the Colored National Baptist association. The sessions, which are to last five days, are being held in the Cosmopolitan Baptist church. The attendance includes the presidents of colleges, editors of denominational journals, industrial women, and representative men in the ministry. These are all blended for the one purpose of advancing the mission work of the colored Baptists both at home and abroad.

The association is the largest, organized body of colored Christians in the country, numbering more than all other colored religious bodies put together. The first effort to enlist the colored Baptists of the country in educational and missionary work was in the New England Baptist convention, but owing to the name and the narrow limits to which it was bound, it met with discouragement and, finally, failure. The consolidated convention of the western states and territories endeavored to organize the colored Baptists into one large organization, but this, too, failed for reasons similar to those which led to the failure of the New England convention. It was not until the year 1887 that a permanent organization was perfected.

American Missionary Ass'n.
Oberlin, O., Oct. 23.—The sixtieth annual meeting of the American Missionary Association, which is devoted primarily to mission work among the negroes, Indians and Chinese in America, opened its four days' session in Oberlin today. Many of the most noted missionary workers of the country are present. The president of the association, Rev. Dr. Anory H. Bradford of Montclair, N. J., was unable to be present at the opening because of illness. In his absence President King of Oberlin College and President Slocum of Colorado College will act as presiding officers. Dr. Bradford will be re-elected.

At the present meeting of the association the emphasis will be placed on the consideration of "What the Negro Has Done for Himself." Another leading topic of discussion will be that of Japanese immigration into the United States. It is reported that whereas formerly many Japanese stopped at Hawaii, the great mass of them now come on to the United States and are settling on the Pacific coast. From a missionary standpoint the interesting features of this immigration is the fact that with these Japanese are coming Buddhist missionaries, sent out by the Buddhist Foreign Missionary Society of Tokio.

The reports of the secretary and other officers and of the executive committee show the past year to have been an exceedingly active one for the association. As the result of retrenchment in office and field expenses and the increase of contributions, the debt of the association has been reduced from $33,000 to $37,000. Plans will be formulated at the present meeting to wipe out the remaining incumbrance, which has been accumulating for several years.

BRYAN'S ADDRESSES MADE OUT OF DOORS

Nebraskan Speaks at Ball Park in Indianapolis This Evening—No Time for Street Demonstration.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 23.—After a hustling speech-making tour by trolley car through the gas belt William J. Bryan comes to Indianapolis tonight to deliver the principal address of the democratic campaign in Indiana this fall. There will be no street demonstration because of the short time that Mr. Bryan will be in the city. He will be met by a reception committee and escorted to the ball park, where his address will be delivered from a platform facing the grandstand. It is understood that in deference to the wishes of the Indiana campaign managers Mr. Bryan will touch but lightly upon the subject of government ownership. The advice he has been given is to praise President Roosevelt for his efforts to break up trusts and curb the railroads, and to condemn congress for not being more ready to obey the President's behests. This, it is believed, will do more to help out the democrats in their congressional campaign than could be accomplished by attacking the president.

THE TERCENTENARY OF LAKE CHAMPLAIN

Legislature of Vermont Will be Petitioned to Mark Three Hundredth Anniversary of Discovery.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 23.—The patriotic and historical societies of Vermont are foremost in a movement which may result in provision by the legislature, now in session here, for the celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the discovery by Samuel de Champlain of the lake which bears his name. This anniversary falls on July 4, 1609. It is suggested that the anniversary be commemorated neither by a monument nor an exposition, but by a program of exercises in which Canada and France, as well as the United States, might officially take part.

NEW LAWS MAY DISRUPT INSURANCE AGENTS BODY

Association Of Underwriters Are Wroth Over New York Statute Reducing Commission Per Cents.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 23.—More than four hundred delegates and alternates, representing nearly all the states, met in the Olympic Theatre today at the opening of the seventeenth annual convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters. Very little business was transacted on this, the opening day, the time being consumed with addresses of welcome and routine business. Owing to the exceptional conditions existing in the life insurance business at the present time there are weighty questions to be discussed by the underwriters, and before the convention closes, Thursday, much that is now being thought will be expressed and determined.

Among life insurance men it has been a foregone conclusion for months that the present convention would be the most important in the association's history. This is due to the almost revolutionary changes which have overtaken life insurance during the present year as a result of the eastern investigations and the passage of the Armstrong law in New York. The association is virtually facing a crisis in its history. It is believed that the membership is almost unanimously against some of the main features of the recent New York legislation, but just which form the opposition will take is problematical. Section 97 of the New York law will likely receive much consideration. This limits the commissions to be paid agents and its enforcement means a reduction of the first year's commission of 9 per cent of all agents in the country. Another move forecast is an effort to amend the constitution, making it impossible for any one connected with a company in an official capacity to hold office in the association. Supporters of this step argue that as the association is composed of active field men it is neither fair to them nor to the companies to have any but active agents in official capacities.

Before The Footlights.

COMING THEATRICAL EVENTS

Tuesday evening, Oct. 23—The Standard Opera Co. in "Ballo's 'Bohemian Girl.'"
Wednesday evening, Oct. 24—"A Mad Love," the same being an adaptation from "Lady Audrey's Secret."
Thursday evening, Oct. 25—"Rose Melville in the Hoosier comedy, 'Sis Hopkins.'"
The popularity of real music is attested by the hearty and spontaneous applause which greets the Standard Opera company in the operas of "Martha" and "The Bohemian Girl." A thousand memories are awakened by the dear familiar airs in these old operas. Who can listen to the beautiful melody in "Then You'll Remember Me" without a quickening of the pulse and a tender thought of the bygone days. This is the music that reaches the heart, that "Age Cannot Withstand Custom Stale." "The Bohemian Girl" will be presented at the Myers theatre this evening.

"A Mad Love"
One of the interesting attractions of the season will be presented at the Myers theatre Wednesday, Oct. 24, when Edward B. Salter's "A Mad Love," with Miss Lydia Powell, the talented young Californian actress, appears here for the first time. The play is adapted from Miss M. E. Brandon's celebrated story, "Lady Audrey's Secret," by Edward Locke, and has caused a vast amount of discussion. The story deals with a devoted wife and gives Miss Powell ample scope for her well-known emotional abilities. It pictures with fidelity the truth, the true woman's love for a worthless scamp. It is a story strong in motive, as well as a lesson from life. It is a play of great interest, interwoven with a charming love story. It is a drama of incidents and beautiful situations, not a long drawn out literary dissertation, but appeals directly to the heart of the people. No one can afford to miss it. The scenic equipment of the play is said to be something impressive, the company carrying three carloads of scenery and electrical effects.

"Sis Hopkins" in "Sis Hopkins"
There must be much more than mere curiosity that impels the theatre-going public to accept a play season after season and year after year with little change of minor importance in the production. There must be cleanliness and deep heart interest and originality of expression. In fact, the play must be a classic and that is just why that pure comedy play of Hoosier country life, "Sis Hopkins," is received year after year with increasing enthusiasm. Miss Rose Melville, who created the title role, is playing the leading character, that of the awkward and shy little country girl, whose mannerisms awaken the interest of her hearers. Miss Melville is now making her eighth tour of the country and the success which she is meeting with is more brilliant and pronounced than ever. This season's tour is the longest in point of distance that her company has been so strengthened by her manager, Mr. J. B. Shilling, that every part is perfectly cast. Every actor is a specialist in the particular character he portrays. The famous scenery scene has been added to the utmost with new specialty and brilliant bits of comedy.

Law Fields' New Venture
Law Fields is to give a burlesque of "The Great Divide" at the Herald Square theatre, New York as soon as it can be written. Mr. Fields will go back to neticians and burlesque Miss Anglin.

Lillian Russell to Try Annew
Lillian Russell's season, in "Barbara's Millions," has ended disastrously and she is arranging for a new comedy "The Keltigh Chambers," in which to resume her tour a few weeks hence.

..Forty Years Ago..

Janesville Daily Gazette, Tuesday, October 23, 1866.—A Swindler and Impostor.—There is a fellow hanging around town representing himself sometimes as an Episcopal clergyman and again as a Presbyterian minister who is anxious to obtain funds to go to his brother-in-law in Chicago. A good many kindly disposed people have aided him, but we think his long coat and demure looks have imposed upon the charitably disposed. He is evidently a scallywag and should be arrested for vagrancy.

FASHION, BEAUTY, AND GREATNESS AT MYERS

Notable Gathering at Beautifully Decorated Playhouse to Witness Opera "Martha" Last Evening.

Myers' Grand theatre, with balcony and box arrayed in a gorgeous autumn dress of scarlet maple leaves, sombre palms, and white chrysanthemums, welcomed a large and fashionable audience last evening. Von Flotow's "Martha", presented by the Standard Opera Co., was the offering and that beautiful old ballad, "The Last Rose of Summer", so delightfully rendered by Miss Pauline Perry, and echoed and re-echoed through the last two acts, could have had no more fitting nor appropriate an environment, on either side of the footlights. Fifty-four students of the Blind Institute, were guests of the management and occupied several tiers of seats in the rear of the auditorium. Late in the evening Governor James Davidson, Secretary Munson, Senator John M. Whitehead, District Attorney J. L. Fisher, Wilbur Carle, and others took possession of one of the boxes on the south side and immediately after the close of the act then in progress the orchestra, led by Rudolph Berthner, struck up on "The Star Spangled Banner." As the first notes of this patriotic air were heard the great audience rose from their seats and with vigorous hand-clapping showed the state executive just how pleased they were to have him there. Governor Davidson was not sure at first that a national hymn was not on the everyday bill of fare in Janesville and that the demonstration was really intended for him, but he took chances and bowed his acknowledgements.

The opera was very well presented with a better tenor and a stronger chorus it would have aroused great enthusiasm. Miss Pauline Perry both in her vocal work and her acting answered every demand. Her silvery voice and winsome presence was awaited in every act. George A. Natanson, possessed of a strong and pleasant voice, was excellent as "Plunkett" and the same may be said of Miss Clara Hunt as "Nancy." Cecil De-Mille, who staged the production, played a minor part. He is not a singer, though his part requires him to hum a few notes occasionally. The orchestra of eight pieces is a fine one and Leader Berthner's violin solo was roundly applauded.

Altogether the production pleased and another audience larger than that of last evening, is already assured for tonight.

POSTAL PACKAGES WILL BE WATCHED

"Merchandise" Must Not Contain Letters or Notes of Any Description—Heavy Penalty for Violation.

Postal regulations, affecting the classification of mail, will be strictly enforced and persons guilty of false declarations relative to the classification of mail forwarded are liable to imprisonment and heavy fine and imprisonment. A circular has been received at the local office that the regulations are to be carefully observed. Many persons have for years been in the habit of mailing packages of merchandise in which was enclosed a letter or note at the rate established by the government. It has annually been cheated out of large sums and is now resolved to stop such proceedings. The rules say that package paid "merchandise" rates must contain no writing whatever and the enclosure of a letter makes the whole package liable for the higher postage rate. The principal offenders along this line are said to be those sending away tobacco tags. In the package containing the tags is usually a note stating which of the various premiums offered by the tobacco trust the sender wants. The fine for such an offense is $10, and the law providing for such punishment is from now on to be enforced to the letter. All merchandise packages are to be inspected at the receiving office at the other end and in case writing is found therein the postoffice detectives will immediately get after the sender and put him through.

ASKS CITIZENS TO DONATE CLOTHING

Associated Charities Organization Is Preparing for Active Relief Work in City.

Members of the Associated Charities held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon and planned the work which is to be done this winter. The suggestion that merchants and other business people be provided with cards which may be given applicants for charity and presented by them to the officers of the association, met with favor. It is believed that considerable annoyance to citizens will be prevented thereby and that the cases will be better cared for.

The Association appeals to the residents of the city to send all the clothing and bedding they have to spare to Helmstreet's drugstore on Monday, Nov. 5. Several of the grocers have kindly offered the use of their wagons for transporting such articles on that day and will act promptly upon receiving telephone calls. Goods may be left there at any time. A large room has been secured for the storage of clothing and Capt. Pliny Norcross has presented the association with $10 in cash as a "nest egg" for the fund they wish to raise. The secretary reports that in a number of cases since the last meeting distress has been relieved.

Mr. Robert Whiteley, of Pittsburg, Pa., writes: "My wife was subject to chronic stomach trouble and terrible nervousness; she was thin, and had a worn out look. Doctors, after great expense, all failed to help her. At last she tried Vinol, and soon the change in her condition seemed almost miraculous. She continued its use, and today she is in perfect health and has gained 35 pounds. Her friends hardly know her so great is the change. To Vinol we give all the praise, and everywhere I recommend your Vinol as I have more faith in it than I have in doctors or any other medicine."

The State of Wisconsin to the Said Defendant: You are hereby summoned to appear within twenty days after service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service, and defend the above entitled action in the court aforesaid, and in case of your failure so to do, judgment will be rendered against you

"How will you avoid that danger?"

"My dear boy, do you suppose for an instant that I would reply to that after pointing out that a detective may be listening? However, I will give you an idea. I will show you what I mean when I said that Pottingill had blundered. You said that he had lost only a button and thought it clever in Barnes to trace him from the button. But a button may be a most important thing. If I should lose one of the buttons of my vest while committing a crime, Mr. Barnes would trace me out in much less than ten days, and for this reason they are the only ones of the kind in the world."

"How does that happen? I supposed that buttons were made by the thousand."

"Not all buttons. For reasons which I need not tell the possibly listening detective, a friend traveling abroad had a set made specially and brought them back to me as a present. They are hand-somely cut, emblems, half the set having the profile head of Juliet and the others a similar face of Romeo."

"A romance?"

"That is immaterial. Suppose that I should plan a robbery in order to decide this matter. As necessity would not urge me either as to time or place, I should choose my opportunity for my crime when but one person guarded the treasure. That one I should chloroform and also tie. Next, I should help myself to the designated plunder. Suppose that I were about to depart a sleeping, unobserved, for pet dog should jump out and bark furiously. I reach for it, and it snaps at me, biting my hand. I grapple with the throat and strangle it, but in its death throes it bites my vest, and a button falls to the ground and rolls away. The dog is at last silenced. Your ordinary burglar by this time would be so unobserved that he would hasten off, not even realizing that he had been bitten, that blood had flowed, or that the button was lost. Mr. Barnes is sent to the house the next day. The lady suspects her coachman, and Mr. Barnes consents to his arrest, not because he thinks him guilty, but because, as the mistress thinks so, he may be, and then more especially, his arrest will fill the fear of the real culprit. Mr. Barnes would observe blood on the ground, on the dog's mouth, and he would find the button. From the button he would find Mr. Thief, with his hand bitten, and there you are."

"But how should you avoid all that?"

"In the first place, were I really wise, I should not have tellable buttons about me at such a time. But let us suppose that the time had not been of my own choosing; then the buttons might have been with me. Assured as I should have been that the only person in the house lay chloroformed and tied, I should not have lost my nerve; as did the other individual. Neither should I have allowed myself to be bitten, though if the accident had occurred I should have stopped to wash up the stain from the carpet while fresh, and also from the dog's mouth. I should have discovered the loss of the button, searched for and recovered it, untied the victim and opened the windows, that the odor of chloroform could pass off during the night. In fact, in the morning the only evidence of crime would have been the strangled dog and the absence of the pet."

"It is easy enough to explain your actions under supposititious circumstances. But I doubt if in Pottingill's shoes you would have been able to retain your presence of mind and recover the lost button which led to his arrest."

"It is possible that you are right, for had I been Pottingill I should have been coerced by necessities as he was. Yet I think I should not have played such a robbery, choosing 'my own time' as he did, and then have taken with me such a button. But from Mr. Barnes' standpoint, as I said before, very little of the artist was needed. The button was constructed of a curious old coin. Mr. Barnes went the rounds of the dealers and found the very man who had sold Pottingill the coin. The rest was routine work."

"Well, you are conceited, but I don't mind making a thousand out of your egoism. Now I am sleepy, however, so good night."

"Good night, old man. Dream of a way to earn an extra thousand, for I shall win."

For Mr. Barnes himself sleep was now more impossible than ever. He was attracted to this new case, for so he counted it, and was determined to trap the individual who wagged against his accumen. It was a long step toward success to know as much as he had overheard. He would not lose sight of his man during the allotted month. He enjoyed the prospect of allowing him to commit his crime and then quietly taking him in the net. Carefully and noiselessly he dressed himself and slipped out of his berth. Then he crept into one opposite, so that he could have his eye on No. 8, and settled down for an all night vigil.

"It would not surprise me if that keen devil were to commit his crime this very night. I hope so, for otherwise I shall have no sleep till he does."

CHAPTER II.
A DARING AND SUCCESSFUL TRAIN ROBBERY.

The train was just approaching Stamford, and from the window in the section which he occupied Mr. Barnes was watching the sun glowing red over the hills, when he heard approaching him the guard who had assisted him to jump aboard the night before. The man was making mysterious gestures, from which Mr. Barnes understood that he was wanted. He arose and followed the porter to the smoking room.

"I think you called yourself Barnes," said the man, "as you jumped aboard last night."

"Yes; what of it?"

"Are you Mr. Barnes, the detective?"

"Why do you ask?"

"Because, if you are, the conductor wants to see you. There was a big robbery committed on the train during the night."

"The devil!"

"Exactly, but will you come into the next coach?"

"Wait a minute." Mr. Barnes went back into the main part of the coach and tipped toward No. 8. Gently moving the curtains, he peeped in and looked long and earnestly. He saw two men undoubtedly sleeping soundly. Satisfied, therefore, that he could leave his watch for a short period, he followed the porter into the next coach, where he found the conductor waiting for him in the smoking room.

"You are Mr. Barnes, the detective?" asked the conductor. Mr. Barnes assented.

"Then I wish to place in your hands officially a most mysterious case. We took on a lady last night at Boston, who had a ticket to South Newark. As we were approaching that point a short time ago she was notified by the porter to leave the train. A few minutes later I was hurriedly summoned, when the woman, between hysterical sobs, informed me that she had been robbed."

"Of much?"

"She claims to miss a satchel containing $100,000 in jewelry."

"You have stated that admittedly. She claims to miss it. What evidence have you that she has met with a loss at all?"

"Of course we cannot tell about the jewelry, but she did have a satchel, which is now missing. The porter remembers it, and we have searched thoroughly, with no success."

"We have stopped at New Haven and at Bridgeport. How many persons have left the train?"

"No one has left the sleepers."

"When you say that no one has left the sleepers, I suppose you mean you saw no one leave?"

"No, I mean just what I said. I have sent the porters through the coaches, and they report that all our passengers are in their berths. But here we come to a point. If no one has left the train, then the thief must be aboard."

"Certainly!"

"The woman when she discovered her loss concluded to remain aboard and go on to New York. All the other passengers save one are booked for New York. That one is a man, and he is now dressing, as his destination is Stamford. If he leaves, he may take the jewelry with him, yet what am I to do?"

"State the facts of the case to him. If he is innocent, he will willingly submit to being searched. If, however, he refuses, well, we can be guided by circumstances. Call him in here now."

A few minutes later a foreign and distinctly French appearing man entered. In speech he disclosed his origin, but the account was slight. He was of fine appearance, dignified and gentlemanly.

Mr. Barnes sat at the window looking out. The conductor with considerable hesitancy explained the case, concluding with:

"You see, my dear sir, this is an awkward business, but we are so sure that the thief is still aboard that—"

"That you hesitate to allow me to leave the train, oh, monsieur, is it not so? Yet why should there be any trouble? An honest man must never be hurt in his feelings when he is asked to assist the law, even though for the moment he is himself a suspect?"

In this case it is so simple if only the honest man will make no trouble. They will say to you, 'Search me!' You do and at last one comes who says, 'You insult me!' That one is of course the thief, eh, monsieur? Do you not agree with me?" He turned toward Mr. Barnes, addressing this last remark to him. The detective looked at him a moment steadily, as was his wont when he meant to remember a face. The Frenchman returned the gaze undisturbed.

"I said almost the same thing to the conductor before you came in," said Mr. Barnes.

"Exactly so. Now, then, with your permission I will disrobe. Look, if you please, most carefully. My honor is at stake. The more carefully you examine the less suspicion can attach to me hereafter."

The conductor made a thorough search, emptying every pocket and taking every precaution. He did not expect to find anything, but it was essential that extreme care should be observed. Nothing was found, and the man, reassured his clothing.

"Now, if you please, I have with me but two small satchels. If the porter will bring them, I will unlock them for you. I have no trunk; as I only went to Boston for a day's trip."

The satchels were brought, examined and nothing found.

"Now, gentlemen, I suppose I am free, as we are at my station. I shall only remain here a few minutes and will then go on to New York. If you should wish to see me again, I shall stop at the Hoffman House. Here is my card. An revoir!"

Mr. Barnes took the card and scrutinized it.

"What do you think?" asked the conductor.

"Think? Oh, you mean of that fellow. You need not worry about him. There is not a shadow of suspicion against him—at present. Besides, should we ever want him I could find him again. Here is his name—Alphonse Thaurat—card genuine; too, of French make and style of type. We can dismiss him now and turn our attention to the other passengers. Do you suppose I could have an interview with the woman?"

Balloons Travel Farther Into Mountainous Country of Vermont, One Reaching Height of 8,000 Feet, Encountering Great Heat.

Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 23.—Two balloons, Centaur and L'Orient, which remained here after the aero-automobile race between balloons and automobiles for the Hawley cup had been declared off last Saturday, participated in an endurance contest Monday, which carried them many miles over northwestern Massachusetts and southern Vermont.

The balloons rose from here at 10:20 a. m. The Centaur carried Charles T. Walsh, pilot, and Maj. Samuel Reber, and Capt. Charles F. Chandler, of the signal corps. U. S. A. L'Orient was piloted by Leo Stevens, who had as his companion Capt. Homer W. Hedge, president of the Aero club of America.

The balloons were in sight of each other for about three hours, and after them sped three automobiles, which had been entered in the Hawley contest on Saturday.

The Centaur was slightly behind L'Orient in crossing the Vermont border, and after getting over Bennington Pilot Walsh decided to land. The descent was successfully accomplished on the slope of Woodford mountain.

The occupants of the Centaur said on landing that they considered their object accomplished and that their trip had been highly successful from a scientific standpoint. The Centaur reached a height of 8,200 feet.

After seeing the Centaur descend, Pilot Stevens of L'Orient decided to keep on. Twenty-seven more miles of southern Vermont was traversed, and at 4:30 L'Orient came down in Jamaica.

Mr. Stevens said after landing that L'Orient went 8,000 feet into the air.

Above the clouds the heat was so intense that all outside clothing had to be discarded. At one time the thermometer registered 106 degrees.

Twenty-five minutes after the Centaur landed in Bennington an automobile piloted by Floyd Knight, of this city, stopped by the side of the car. Half an hour later an automobile owned by C. F. Bishop, of Lenox, arrived on the scene.

Both these machines had followed the balloons as an experiment, although both airplanes were out of sight most of the time.

IT IS ONE THING

to claim all the possible good things for a stove and quite another thing "to deliver the goods." The genuine ROUND OAK has never disappointed a user yet; and after all the years it has been tried and tested you certainly do not take a chance if you need a stove and decide on the ROUND OAK. This year it is better than ever; it has an improved hot blast for burning soft coal, with this draft alone it will make as fine a fire as one could desire, as it burns the gas and soot and makes the smoke clear. It has other exclusive features; for instance, the double fire pot and cone center grate that makes no clinkers. You will surely appreciate this point. It certainly holds the belt as the best heating stove and we are ready at all times to explain the reasons why. To be certain it is the genuine, always look for the name—

"ROUND OAK"

H. L. McNAMARA

"Grant's tomb, Fritz. Here lies the remains of the famous general you have read about."
